Short Synopsis:

A faithless journey takes an unexpected turn when a girl, delving into astronomy and guided by a new friend, encounters evidence of an eternal God. Confronting her pain, echos of her late mother's words revive a dormant passion that she once had but the tragic loss of her father forces her to question everything. What she discovers is a loving creator who knows her brokenness and pain and is faithful through it all.

EXT. CAMPGROUND - NIGHT

Michael FLINGS ANOTHER LOG on the fire as sparks burst into the air. Mary walks up to her mother who is laying on a blanket gazing at the stars.

LILY

Mary, come.

Mary lays down next to her mother and looks up at the sky.

LILY (CONT'D)

What do you see?

MARY

Lots and lots of stars.

LILY

Yes, lots of stars.

The young Mary considers the noticeable groupings of some of the stars.

MARY

I feel sad though.

LILY

What's wrong baby?

MARY

It's almost like some of them have a family but other ones don't.

Lily turns to look in amazement at her daughter.

LILY

You know what? Most stars travel around the galaxy in clusters.

MARY

Clusters?

LILY

Mmhmm. It means that a group of stars stay really close together.

MARY

Like a family?

LILY

Just like a family.

The two share a smile. Mary reaches out and begins to caress the star necklace around her mothers neck. Lily unlatches it and hands it to Mary. Mary smiles ear to ear.

MARY
Really?

LILY
Mmhmm.

Mary turns back to the sky.

MARY
Do you think they can see us?

LILY
The one who put them there can.

Just then TWO STARS SHOOT across the sky. They both gasp.

Lily turns again to look at Mary.

LILY (CONT'D)
Can you see?

Mary turns and looks deep into her mothers eyes.

LILY (CONT'D)
God is watching.
