MARTHA

Absolutely beautiful. You said she's graduating this year right?

MICHAEL WARD

Yes she is. Such a bright kid. I'm really proud of her.

MARTHA

And that's her mother.

Michael nods his head and gives a slight smile.

MICHAEL WARD

Lily.

Martha smiles at Michael knowing the family history. She scans the rest of the room and observes all the beautiful captured moments on the walls.

MARTHA

There is so much love in this house.

MICHAEL WARD

Lots of memory.

(beat)

I get lost in it. Nothing really feels like it used to. These pictures are just hollow shells of what my family used to be. For so many years after Lily passed, I did what I could to keep her alive.
Everything I saw or heard sparked some memory.. And I would follow down the rabbit hole. At times it felt real to get swept up in it.
But it wasn't... It crippled me. I was terrified to let go.

MARTHA

So what changed?

MICHAEL WARD

Mary. She never gave up. Helped me find the strength to take a step.

MARTHA

You know, John said when you came in to the donation center, it was like you were leaving behind a heavy burden and searching for something.

MICHAEL WARD

I agree with John. I was searching for something. I just didn't know what it was at the time.

MARTHA

What was it?

MICHAEL WARD

I think it was a little bit of God's grace. Not to mention the best steak quesadillas and brownies I think I've ever tasted.

Michael grabs another off the plate and offers it to Martha who takes one and the two CLINK brownies together and partake.

INT. MARY'S APARTMENT - EVENING

Mary sits on her rug taking notes with a debate video playing on youtube. Her phone rings. Its her dad.

MARY

Dad!

MICHAEL WARD

Can I put you down as my emergency contact?

Mary is tickled by the request.

MARY

Sure. Why?

MICHAEL WARD

I have to fill out this waiver thing.

MARY

What am I getting myself into?

MICHAEL WARD

Nothing at all it's just some volunteer work (beat)
with my church.

Mary smiles.

MARY

You'r what?

Michaels door bell rings. Food delivery has arrived.

MICHAEL WARD

Oh, my dinner is here. I'll call you back later.

MARY

Can't believe you're gonna leave me with that cliff hanger.

MICHAEL WARD

Oh, sorry sweetie.

MARY

I'm totally joking. Go! I love you.

MICHAEL WARD

Love you too kid.
